CHARTER HIGH SCHOOL FOR ARCHITECTURE + DESIGN

ANNUAL PUBLIC NOTICE - CHILD FIND

Each charter school and school district, along with other public education agencies in the Commonwealth, must establish and implement procedures to identify, locate and evaluate all students who need and may need special education and related services or other accommodations because of a student's disability. This notice, highlighting special education services and identification activities and procedures, is to help find these students, offer assistance to parent/guardians, and to describe their rights concerning confidentiality of information which is maintained not only during the identification process, but also throughout students' enrollment at Charter High School for Architecture + Design (CHAD). CHAD performs identification activities in order to locate not only these exceptional students, but also protected handicapped students and mentally gifted ones, so that all students enrolled at CHAD are provided with suitable programs and services.

Identification Activities ("Child Find")

“Child Find” refers to identification activities performed by public education agencies such as charter schools to identify, locate, and evaluate students who are suspected of having a disability that may interfere with their learning, unless special education programs and related services are provided, in accordance with the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and corresponding federal and state regulations. The purpose of locating such students is so that a free, appropriate, public education (FAPE) can be made available to them, regardless of the severity of their disability.

The types of disabilities that, if found to cause a student to need services, are:

- Autism
- Deaf-blindness
- Deafness
- Developmental delay
- Emotional disturbance
- Hearing impairment
- Intellectual disability
- Multiple disabilities
- Orthopedic impairment
- Other health impairment due to chronic or acute health problems
- Specific learning disability
- Speech and language impairment
- Traumatic brain injury

- Visual impairment including blindness

The identification activities, which are sometimes called screening activities, may include: review of group data (i.e., cumulative records, enrollment records, health records, and report cards), conducting hearing and vision screening, assessment of the student's academic functioning, observation of the student displaying difficulty in behavior, and determining the student's response to attempted remediation. Input from parents/guardians is another information source of identification.

Though scheduled annually, screening activities at CHAD also occur in an ongoing fashion throughout the school year. CHAD annually evaluates the effectiveness of its screening process.

Once a student is identified for suspected disability, he or she is evaluated by CHAD, but only if the parent/guardian has given written permission to proceed with the evaluation process. Regardless of screening activities, at any time that a parent/guardian feels that his/her student may qualify for special education, the parent/guardian may initiate testing procedures by forwarding a written statement stating the parent/guardian's concerns about his/her student, and that the parent/guardian wishes for his/her student to be tested. Upon receipt of written permission from the student's parent/guardian to commence evaluation testing, CHAD has sixty (60) school days to complete the process.

After the evaluation is completed and a report is prepared, a meeting will be held to discuss the results. If the student qualifies for special education and related services, the parent/guardian has the right to offer input into the educational programming and annual goals to be developed for his/her student.

Any parent/guardian wishing to initiate an evaluation may forward a written request with a statement of concerns to the Special Education Coordinator or persons listed in this notice.

Other Identification Activities

CHAD's Child Find Identification activities extend to homeless students, wards of the state, highly mobile students including migrant students, and students with disabilities enrolled by their parents/guardians in private schools necessary to provide them with equitable services.

Child Find activities are also conducted for students with a disability who may not need special education, but who may be eligible for services or accommodations under Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and companion federal and state regulations. Any parent/guardian who believes that his or her student may be eligible for disability accommodations in school may submit, at any time, a written request with a statement of concerns to the Special Education Coordinator or any person listed in this notice.

CHAD engages in screening activities to identify students who may be mentally gifted, and uses the data generated during regular classroom instruction to determine whether a Gifted Multidisciplinary Evaluation (GMDT) is warranted. Parents/Guardians may request gifted screening or a GMDT evaluation at any time, in writing to the Special Education Coordinator or any person listed in this notice.

Signs of Potential Developmental Delays and Other Risk Factors that Could Indicate Disability

Each student develops at his or her own pace, and the rate of normal development varies by the individual student. However, it is helpful for parents/guardians to be aware of signs of potential developmental delays or other risk factors that could indicate disability -- and need for evaluation and/or support and services in school -- particularly if, when compared to other students of the same age, problems are noticed in one or more areas of physical development, gross motor skills, cognitive development, communication development, social and emotional development and adaptive skills:

- Speech or Language Skills -- involving ability to express and receive information at age-appropriate levels
- Cognitive Skills -- involving ability to learn, solve problems and remember tasks
- Gross Motor Skills -- involving ability to use the large muscle groups that assist in walking, running, standing, sitting, changing positions and maintaining balance and coordination
- Fine Motor Skills -- involving ability to grasp, pinch and eat and dress
- Social and Emotional Skills -- involving ability to interact with others, understand social rules, demonstrate social reciprocity and self-regulation
- Adaptive Behavior -- involving everyday skills for functioning such as bathing, dressing, grooming, feeding one's self or performing age-appropriate skills independently

Risk factors for developmental delay are genetic, environmental or a complex mix of factors.

Questions or concerns, as well as written requests for an evaluation, may be directed at any time to the Special Education Coordinator or any person listed in this notice.

Confidentiality of Information

CHAD maintains records concerning all students enrolled in the school, including students with a disability or suspected of having a disability, in accordance with state law and federal law, namely, The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act ("FERPA"). Confidentiality requirements applicable to use of information pertaining to disabled students apply equally to gifted students.

Identification activities undertaken by CHAD for a particular student constitutes an education record for him or her that CHAD maintains in the strictest confidence, as it does for all other education records that contain confidential and personally identifiable information. FERPA serves to protect education records and personally identifiable information such as the student's name, the name of the parent/guardian or other family member, the address of the student or family, student number or biometric record, indirect identifiers such as the student's date of birth or mother's maiden name, or a list of characteristics or other information that would make the student's identity easily traceable.

CHAD will gather information regarding a student's academic, intellectual, physical, mental, emotional and health functioning through testing and assessment, observation of the student, as well as through review of any records made available to the school from the student's physician and/or other providers of services such as any outside agencies.

CHAD stores all education records and personally identifiable information of students receiving special education services, disability accommodations or gifted services in such a way as to protect the confidentiality and integrity of the records and information, prevent unauthorized access to and disclosure of records and information, and ensure compliance with other legal and regulatory requirements regarding records retention. These safeguards are assured by one school official being responsible for ensuring the confidentiality of the records. Training is provided to all persons who need to use the information. A current list of employees by names and positions who may have access to the information is maintained for public inspection.

Consent of the parent/guardian is required before personally identifiable information contained in a student's education records is disclosed to anyone other than officials of the school collecting or using the information for purposes of identification activities and evaluation, or for any other purpose in order to make available FAPE to the student. A school official has a legitimate educational interest in the education record if the official needs to review the education record in order to fulfill his or her professional responsibility. Additionally, upon request, CHAD discloses records without consent to officials of another school or school district in which a student seeks or intends to enroll.

A parent/guardian has a number of rights regarding the confidentiality of his or her student's records, including the right to inspect and review any education records pertaining to his or her student that are collected, maintained or used by CHAD. CHAD will comply with a parent/guardian's request to review the records without unnecessary delay, and before any meeting regarding planning for a student's special education program or Individual Education Program (IEP), and before a hearing in the event of disagreement about a student's special education needs. In no event may CHAD take more than 45 days to furnish a parent/guardian with the opportunity to inspect and review his or her student's records.

A parent/guardian of a student with, or suspected of having, a disability, has the right: to an explanation of the records; to be provided with a copy of the records if otherwise the parent/guardian would be effectively prevented from exercising his or her right to inspect and review the records; and to have a representative inspect and review the records upon authorization of parent/guardian.

CHAD will not charge a fee to search for or to retrieve information in response to a request from parent/guardian. CHAD may charge a fee of $0.10 per page for copies of records that are made for parents/guardians, so long as the fee does not effectively prevent them from exercising their right to inspect and review those records. Upon request, CHAD will provide parent/guardian with a list of the types and location of education records collected, maintained or used by CHAD.

A parent/guardian of a student with, or suspected of having, a disability has the right to request the amendment of his or her student's education records, which the parent/guardian believes are inaccurate or misleading, or violates the privacy or other rights of his or her student. CHAD will decide whether to amend the records within a reasonable time of receipt of a parent/guardian's request. If CHAD refuses to amend the records, the parent/guardian will be notified of the refusal and right to a hearing. The parent/guardian will be given, at that time, additional information regarding the hearing procedures. Upon request, CHAD will provide the parent/guardian with a records hearing to challenge information in his or her student's education files. If, as a result of the hearing, CHAD still decides not to amend the record, the parent/guardian has the right to insert a statement setting forth his or her views; such statement remains with the contested part of the student's record for as long as the record is maintained. These amendment procedures under FERPA cannot be used to challenge a grade, an individual's opinion, or a substantive decision made by CHAD about the student.

Once a student graduates from or leaves CHAD, CHAD will maintain a permanent record of the former student's name, telephone number, grades, achievement, attendance, classes attended, grade level completed and year completed, without time limitation. When information gathered is no longer needed to provide educational services to the student, such information shall be destroyed upon request of the parent/guardian or after written notice to the parent/guardian.

CHAD will ensure the destruction of education records in a manner that protects the confidentiality and privacy rights of the student and his/her family. No education record shall be destroyed if there is an outstanding request to inspect or review the record or if a litigation hold exists.

When a student reaches age 18, the rights of the parent/guardian regarding confidentiality of personally identifiable information is transferred to the student. A parent/guardian may file a written complaint alleging that the rights described in this notice were not provided to the following:

Pennsylvania Department of Education, Bureau of Special Education
Compliance Division
333 Market St.
Harrisburg, PA 17126-0333

Complaints alleging failure regarding confidentiality of personally identifiable information may also be filed with:

Family Policy Compliance Office
U.S. Department of Education
400 Maryland Avenue, SW
Washington, D.C. 20202-4605

Description of Special Education Programs and Services

CHAD provides appropriate special education programs and related services that are:

- at no cost to parents/guardians;
- under the authority of CHAD directly, or by referral or contract;
- individualized to meet the student's unique educational needs; and
- reasonably calculated to produce meaningful educational benefit and progress through an IEP, developed with meaningful input of parent/guardian.

Related services available to students, if appropriate to address their particular needs, include transportation, speech therapy, occupational therapy, school health services, hearing services, vision services, counseling and training.

For more information about CHAD's Special Education Programs and Services, please see the Annual Public Notice of Special Education Programs and Services and Services for Protected Handicapped Students and Gifted Students. Questions or concerns also may be directed to the Special Education Coordinator or any person listed in this notice.

Outreach Activities

CHAD performs awareness activities to inform the public of its efforts to locate and identify students thought to be eligible for special education services and programs, procedures for requesting services, and processes ensure confidentiality of information pertaining to students with disabilities. Outreach efforts include, but are not limited to, any of the following: parent/teacher conferences, resources in the school building, materials mailed home, and/or generally accessible print or electronic media as appropriate such as publication in the Student-Parent Handbook and posting on the school's website.

Information about CHAD's special education programs and services, and the manner in which such services may be requested and accessed, also is made available to health and mental health professionals, daycare providers, county agency personnel and other interested professionals who work with homeless students, wards of the state, highly mobile students including migrant students, and students with disabilities enrolled by their parents/guardians in private schools.

Equal Opportunity in Educational Programs and Activities

CHAD does not discriminate in educational programs or activities based on race, color, national origin, age, sex, sexual orientation, handicap, creed, marital status or disability. No student enrolled at CHAD will be denied equal opportunity to participate in age and program-appropriate instruction or activities for any reason prohibited by federal or state law.
